

I do not think that the standards for television profanities, nudity, etc. should be lowered. If anything, they should be much more stringent. The television is no longer safe for children to watch. Even if a parent is very careful in choosing which programs their children watch, the commercials are still terrible. Children are still going to hear bad language, see suggestive material or women in lingerie, and other objectionable content just by watch the commercials that play between their shows.

The content of many shows has become so violent, sexual, and profane that they are not decent even for an adult to watch. If someone came into your home and acted/spoke like the people seen on many shows, most families would promptly ask them to leave because of their inappropriate behavior. Yet, this is what plays constantly on the television which we place as the focal point of most modern American living rooms. There needs to be more regulation on what is allowed on television shows, NOT less! I am just one of many people who are tired of all the garbage being constantly fed into the mind of young children and teenagers these days. We ask ourselves why so many children and teenagers are displaying such violent and disrespectful behavior in our modern world. The answer is simple; it's mainly because of the examples they are having set for them on the television and video game. Modern television/video games constantly display violence, crude behavior, and profanity as a good thing. Want to help American children grow up to become wholesome, respectful, and beneficial citizens, then start placing more limits on what can be displayed on our televisions. Why, because what you put into your mind is what is eventually going to come out in your actions. From the sounds of my review, you may think that I am a parent/elderly person, because of my views. On the contrary, I am a young 20 year old woman who is tired off all the corruption and pain I see in this country. This may not be the most common view point of people my age, but I believe that it is a very valid one.
